Céline sponsors retrospective exhibition
Through LVMH’s patronage initiatives, young audiences are exposed to the best of culture, and children, students and young creative talents have opportunities to expand their knowledge or skills.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND MUSIC

Young audience

Enabling young people to attend the most exceptional concerts of the Paris season

“1,000 seats for young people” / Nurturing the music lovers of tomorrow

Over the past 15 years some 32,000 concert tickets have been given to young amateur musicians attending local Paris conservatories, allowing them to attend prestigious musical performances in Paris (Berlin and Vienna Philharmonic Orchestras, Maurizio Pollini, Jessye Norman, A.S. Mutter, Alfred Brendel, Mstislav Rostropovich and others)

Opening young ears to contemporary music

LVMH sponsored the reopening of the IRCAM music research institute in June 1996 and organized open days for young people

Giving high school students a chance to discover and enjoy music

“Students at Châtelet” is a partnership with the Théâtre du Châtelet in Paris throughout the concert season. Groups from two high schools are invited to each concert

Promotion of young French singers

Support for the “Musik’Elles” festival and educational workshops designed specially for junior high school students in Meaux

Make access young audiences without access to the knowledge of music, at instruments and musical repertoire
